I would like to call your attention to two specific offerings in this issue of The Rooms Chronicle®.

First, TRCSM has negotiated with the nationally recognized law firm of Ford & Harrison LLP to make available to our subscribers a dynamic offer for prepaid legal advice for employment-related questions and concerns. Spearheading this offering is attorney Don Lee, who I am sure many of you will recognize as our primary Human Resources column contributing author for the past five years. Because of Don's special relationship with TRCSM, he has put together an incredibly affordable package where each month subscribers may take advantage of 30 minutes of legal advice from Don and the 200 other employment law attorneys at Ford & Harrison's various offices when you have questions or concerns regarding legal employment matters. The annual cost of the service is only $100, saving TRCSM subscribers over $1,400 in prevailing attorney rates. Please see the enclosed brochure for details and to take advantage of this offer.

Also, I would like to welcome Dr. Brian Miller from the University of Delaware as a new regular contributing author. Brian will be sharing his expertise on sustainability issues in each issue with advice on how hoteliers can help "green" their hotels, reduce their environmental footprint, and help hotel operators to lower resource usage and reduce costs. This is something that is undoubtedly on the mind of all hoteliers and many guests these days.

Just two more examples of how TRCSM is benefitting its readers.
